Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

At this festive season of the year somehow sentimentality comes early and stays beyond the arrival of a new year. Remembering favorite relatives with special gifts, writing notes and selecting gifts for old friends and anticipating the arrival of folks away from home will never be forgotten in the frenzy to get ready for the special event that comes on December 25th. It is also a time to contemplate our surroundings, as we invariably do, to learn again that this land in which we live is special and apart from almost any place around the globe. The uncanny part about it, is that even short-term visitors get caught up in the contagious friendliness of the twin cities and they go away with fond memories that live a long, long time.

Such was the memory that Mignon (Mrs. Adron) Doran witnessed when she came here last month to speak at the Woman's Club and to visit with her old friends the Bob Browns. Mildred (Brown) called us after Mignon had returned home to tell us what a perfectly wonderful visit she had here and how completely fascinated she was with the incomparable Fulton hospitality.

Undoubtedly Mignon and Doran, too, find it difficult to dim the memory of their visit here for we had a nice note from her in last week's mail. Said Mignon:

"Dear Jo:

"Thanks for the kind and generous story in your paper covering our visit to Fulton. It was such a pleasant affair. I loved every minute of it. Adron concurs, wholeheartedly. Fondly, Mignon."

She asked that we send a copy of the News to another mutual friend Mrs. R. D. Carter, executive secretary of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, so that Mrs. Carter too, can take a "look" at Fulton's hospitality. We have sent the paper and hope that it will entice Mrs. Carter to come here on either a social or official visit.

That special Fulton "spirit" was made loud and clear to us again last week when we attended the annual Christmas party of the Business and Professional Women's Club. We are grateful to Gertrude Murphy for coming by the office to issue the ultimatum that we attend. Her ultimatum was echoed by Ramelle Pigue, who went so far as to select the gift that we were to bring to the party.

Let it be said here and now, that come rain, or snow, or leaden skies we'll try our very best to be at the next meeting. Truly, we have never enjoyed such a get-together in a long, long time. As we drove home we kept saying to ourselves: "WHY HAVEN'T WE BEEN GOING TO THOSE MEETINGS BEFORE NOW?" We're an old B&PW member from 'way back in those Mississippi days. We

When it comes to the point where you haven't got time to be sick, you're in a bad way. So I guess you can say that I'm in a bad way. I didn't even have time to "live up" a full day in the Fulton Hospital Monday. Being confined to the hospital is certainly no way for me to get well, because the more I thought of how much I had to do, and how I was "wasting time" getting well, I just up and told the doctor I was going home. Said he: "Jo, can't you just spend the night, tonight (Monday) and go home in the morning." "No," says I, "because it would look funny as all get out to walk out of the hospital to my desk at the News office." He agreed and so I left.

I don't suppose Dr. Glynn Bushart would have agreed so readily if he thought that my leaving would cause any great complications. The hospital stay was caused by an ailing tooth. It's been going on for some several months now. The ailment reminds me of the old story my father used to tell me. It was of the ant and the grasshopper. You remember that one don't you?

Whenever this particular tooth is aching like all get out I go to an MD and tell him to give me something to relieve the pain and the ailment until I can go to the dentist and have it yanked out. When the pain is gone, I say "what the heck, it's not bothering me, so why pull a perfectly good tooth." I don't, and I never think about it until it acts up again, then I vow all over again.

My brief stay in the hospital reminded me of a story our family doctor told me one time. Said he: "I can't understand why people who have been right sick all day seem to think that the illness is fatal in the middle of the night." I had been having that toothache all day. I had it when I went to bed. Yet, the urgency to have a doctor seemed imperative about three o'clock in the morning when I couldn't sleep, and it was obvious that I didn't think the doctor ought to be asleep.

It was with that thought on my mind that I called Glynn and apologized for the call. After I realized that I awakened him from a deep sleep I felt guilty as could be. Instead of asking him to go down to the hospital and prescribe for me, I prescribed for myself. I asked if he would please call the hospital, order a sedative for me and I would go on down there, get in bed and see what happened to the toothache. He readily agreed. I not only prescribed for myself, I acted as my own caretaker and ambulance driver.

I advised the family I was going to the hospital. Before they

Christmas Spirit Prevails In Music Program Tuesday

By NORMAN WHITE

The First Christian Church was the perfect setting for the program of Christmas and traditional music presented by the Music Department of the Fulton Woman's Club on Tuesday evening. The warmth of the music and the message of Christmas made one completely unaware of the zero temperature outside.

The program was a combination of instrumental and vocal selections presented by musicians from the Fulton area.

Instrumental selections included the lovely opening and closing Christmas music presented by Mrs. J. W. McKendree, organist and Mrs. Leonora Bushart, pianist, which set the mood for the whole program. The Fulton High Band was represented well by a

Ferry - Morse Publication Reveals Staffs, Active Participants In Community Life

Durbin Looks 'Em Over

"Plant Life" (what else) is the name of the chatty and newsy "house organ" of Ferry-Morse Seed Company. It is edited by Charles Pawlukiewicz, well known and popular Fultonian who is manager of the giant seed company's local operation. The monthly publication tells the "news and views of our folks and our firm," it says in the masthead, and it is obvious that the editor covers the ground completely.

The news is broken down into the various company's operations. Fulton's section is called "Fulton Fill-In" and is edited by Robert Hamilton. The November issue proudly printed pictures of the company's participants in the Lion's Club minstrel. The "show-stealers" from Ferry-Morse were: George "Deacon" Albritten, Ken "Kookie" Alexander, Frank "Seedy" Welch and Cal "Mushy" Secombe.

Although all the "Ferry-Morse" get the bulletin, many other subscribers are interested in the plant life of Ferry-Morse. The News prints herewith items from "Fulton Fill-Ins."

Fulton's Paul Durbin Is Legal Beagle, Roaming In Thailand Jungle

FT. SHAFTER, HAWAII (HQ. US ARMY PACIFIC) Dec. 10—Like the circuit-riding judges of America's earlier days, a Kentucky lawyer in the uniform of the United States Army has been traveling through 20,000 miles of Thailand's jungles bringing the law, justice and legal assistance to American troops stationed there.

Until recently, Lieutenant Colonel Paul J. Durbin, of Fulton, Kentucky, served as the Staff Judge Advocate for Joint Task Force 116, which was activated in mid-May, and which is only now returning to the various home bases of its units in the Pacific and Far East areas.

The Task Force, commanded by the Army's Lieutenant General

James L. Richardson, and formed from Army, Marine and Air Force units of the Pacific Command, was ordered into Thailand by President Kennedy at Thailand's request when that country's borders were threatened by communist forces during the height of the crisis in Laos last spring.

Now back at his normal assignment as Deputy Staff Judge Advocate at United States Army Pacific headquarters in Hawaii, Colonel Durbin looks back on his jungle tour of duty as an interesting and professionally valuable experience. During his five-month assignment he traveled through the country by jeep, plane, helicopter and on foot to provide legal assistance to more than 6000 soldiers, marines and airmen stationed all over Thailand.

Shrugging off the deadly snakes encountered, the monsoon rains, the mud and the jungle heat, Colonel Durbin says that the important thing to him was that he was able to help military personnel over some rough spots.

"Some of those boys really had problems," he stated. "The 1st Battle Group, 27th Infantry from Hawaii, for instance, had gone to Thailand in April for a two-week SEATO maneuver. They didn't think they'd be gone long, so they hadn't made any long-term financial and other business arrangements. We had quite a scramble getting their personal affairs straightened out when the 27th was held in Thailand for over four months."

To a lesser degree, the same problems existed for the Marine Battalion Landing Team which later joined the Task Force from Okinawa, and for the Air Force fighter squadrons which came in from the Philippines and the United States, Colonel Durbin said.

"Tenant problems arose when the men lost touch with rental agents back home," he explained. "And there was a constant source of difficulty with state and federal income tax claims. These notices are normally sent by regular mail and by the time they had been forwarded all the way to Thailand by boat mail, it was pretty late to try to reverse some of the actions that had been taken."

During the initial stages of the American troop buildup Colonel Durbin was the only military legal officer in Thailand, and demands for his services were often overwhelming. Each time he would go to Bangkok, 150 miles south of the Joint Task Force headquarters at Korat, word would spread through the city that "The Judge is in town!" Then the phones would start ringing and never let up until he returned to the field.

Out in the field with the troops it was much the same, except for the lack of telephones and modern office conveniences. "The Thais were always startled when they'd

Linda Arrington In Special Course For Food Chain

Linda Arrington, daughter of Mrs. Mary Arrington and a home economics graduate of Murray State College is on the move these days. Linda has accepted a position as nutritionist for the Britling's Cafeteria chain in Memphis. For the past several weeks she has been observing the preparation of food in the huge cafeteria facility before taking special training for the food chain.

Last week Linda took a flying trip to Louisville where she will take specialized instruction to be put into operation when Britling opens its new restaurant in the Laurelgood Shopping Center in Memphis.

"Cafeterias have always had a special fascination for most people," Linda told the News, "but when one stops to consider the thousands of highly scientific methods employed to make that food look as appetizing as it does, then the fascination would be even greater."

Meadowview Can Sell Lots; Fulton Can Pay Fee; Election Laws Violated - Stahr

Lawsuits concerning municipalities have occupied the foremost attention of Circuit Judge Elvis Stahr these past several days. The Judge has ruled in two cases that involved the City of Fulton and South Fulton, the City of Fulton and the owners of the Meadowview Subdivision, and indicated that Kentucky Utilities has justification to sue the City of Hickman and allied agencies for alleged violations of election laws in the November election.

Specifically Judge Stahr:

1—Ruled that the City of Fulton had the legal authority to pay the City of South Fulton $4200 in settlement of an engineer's fee for services rendered to both cities in the matter of a joint sewage disposal system. A taxpayer's suit was filed by J. D. Davis against the Mayor and Commissioners of the City of Fulton to test the legal authority of the city to pay the fee. Judge Stahr ruled that the city officials had the authority to pay the fee without any personal liability on the part of the individuals involved.

The controversy and resulting suit arose when South Fulton sought to collect $8400 from Fulton for half of a $16,800.00 state-ment presented from Nichols Engineering Company of Union City, Mr. Davis, in connection with W. P. Burnette and other interested citizens brought about a compromise of the fee, providing that the individual officers of the City of Fulton were not liable for the amount of the compromise. 2—Judge Stahr also ruled that the subdivision regulations and major street plan adopted by the City of Fulton were not applicable to Meadowview Subdivision owned by Dr. J. L. Jones and Dick Meacham. Judge Stahr's decision resulted from the evidence that Meadowview Subdivision was in existence before the regulations went into effect. The ruling permits the subdivision owners to sell lots in the area previously prohibited because building permits could not be issued in view of certain regulations passed after the subdivision was planned.

3—Judge Stahr ruled Friday that there is sufficient grounds to justify the contest in the recent suit filed by Kentucky Utilities stating that the recent election held by the City of Hickman was illegal. Judge Stahr stated that the defendants shall have until December 15 to file their answer. (Continued on page Twelve)

Sam Holly's 68-Page Scrapbook Is Now On Sale At City Drug, WFUL, The News

The Hollies at Home

It's off the press and ready for your reading pleasure. Sam Holly's Scrapbook, for almost a year in the printing and compiling stage is on sale in time for Christmas gift-giving and for your keepsake.

Sam Holly, office manager of the ASC office in Hickman, reports the news from Hickman over WFUL each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. When he first started "doing the live-wire" he selected some thought for the day, appropriate for the occasion. Soon the listeners began looking forward to Sam's closing thoughts. So much comment was received by the radio station's management that the popular Sam Holly was asked to compile many of his favorite "notes and quotes" in book form.

The 68-page booklet that came off the press this week is a result of that compilation. Poems on friendship, philosophy, religion and for special events are among those printed in the book. Requests for the book have come from all over the area. The first printing contains a limited supply. It sells for one dollar. WFUL and the Fulton News will mail copies of the book, free of charge, when the order is received, paid in advance. For those persons wishing to send the book as a gift for Christmas, the News will enclose a gift card.

An order blank is printed on page three of this week's News. Persons wishing to purchase the book in the twin city area may do so at the City Drug Company on Lake Street. Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McDaniel, owners of the drug store said that they would be happy to handle the sale of the book in order to accommodate the many persons who find the Lake Street Store convenient as a shopping center.

Letter To Kentucky Council Of Churches Makes Clear New Ruling On Exemptions

The Department of Revenue of the Commonwealth of Kentucky has recently issued a regulation (SU-14-1) exempting churches from paying the State Sales and Use Tax on all purchases for use in their religious activities. In order to aid the churches in understanding the application of this regulation the Kentucky Council of Churches asked the Revenue Department to submit a letter outlining the procedure required. The following letter from William R. Reed is in answer to that request.

Dear Rev. Chambers:

During our recent conversation you requested a clarification of the exemption provided under the Sales and Use Tax Law of tangible personal property used by church organizations; and the method by which churches might avail themselves of this exemption.

Pursuant to Regulation SU-14-1, churches are not required to pay sales tax to their suppliers of tangible personal property purchased for use in their religious activities. In order to avail themselves of this exemption, each church must complete and file with the Department of Revenue Form 51A125, entitled "Application for Purchase Exemption." After a review and approval by the Department a purchase exemption number will be issued to each church, the church must then present to each of its suppliers a purchase exemption certificate listing the number assigned by the Department.

The purchase of utilities, sewer services, telephonic and telegraphic services are not included within the exemption. Materials used to construct and repair property are not exempt if the work is performed by an independent contractor. Sales of meals, food and drink are subject to tax if they are served at a function to which the general public is invited.

If a church sponsors no more than two (2) events during a twelve (12) month period to which the public is invited, they must obtain a temporary registration at the nearest district office of the Department of Revenue. The district offices are located in thirteen principal cities. The temporary registration is valid for a period of thirty (30) days. If a church sponsors more than two (2) events during a twelve (12) month period to which the public is invited, it must obtain a sales and use tax permit.

KNOW YOUR STATE GOVERNMENT

By Dr. H. L. McPheeters
Commissioner of Mental Health

What are some of the cases of mental retardation?

While there are many cases of mental retardation, they generally fall into two categories: (1) Those that result from physical changes in the brain, and (2) Those in which the brain is apparently normal but in which the person has not had the opportunity to use and develop his intelligence normally.

Among the many physical causes are those which result from improper development of the brain before birth. This improper development may result from illnesses of the expectant mother (especially illnesses caused by certain virus diseases such as German measles), from poor nutrition of the mother, from a poor location or threatened miscarriage of the developing baby in the mother's womb, or from several rather rare hereditary causes.

Under all of these conditions there may be other improperly developed organs such as heart defects and cleft palates in addition to the mental defect. The amount of mental retardation in these individuals varies greatly—all the way from very slight to very severe.

One special condition that deserves mention is Mongolism. Mongoloid children have a characteristic appearance from birth—wide faces, flat noses, slanting eyelids and stubby fingers and toes. The condition results from a combination of developmental problems. These persons are usually only moderately retarded and so, while they need special training and attention, they usually should not need permanent institutional care. Most of them are extremely easy-going and lovable.

Another group of the mentally retarded become so at the time of birth. This may be the result of a hard labor and difficult birth or it may be the result of a premature birth. These persons may have other problems such as paralysis of a spastic type which makes them walk with a tight, jerky gait and hold their arms in a rigid, bent position. In these cases, too, the amount of retardation is variable from very slight to extremely severe.

In other cases damage to the brain occurs after birth. These cases include infections of the brain, severe blows to the head, brain tumors and severe illness or conditions which block the development of the brain, thyroid gland deficiency, blue baby heart defects and severe malnutrition. Again the amount of mental disability varies greatly from person to person.

In all cases of mental retardation it is important to have a thorough medical - psychological evaluation of the patient made as early as possible, to search for the cause and to detect other conditions which might be corrected to help overcome the mental defect.

In addition, tests of mental abilities are necessary to find out such things as the kinds and amounts of mechanical ability the person possesses as well as the kinds and amounts of reasoning and memory powers.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission.

By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week, Kentucky slaveholders read a card published by Congressman Charles A. Wickliffe of Bardonia, requesting his own constituents and all other Kentuckians whose slaves had been taken from them by the U. S. Army to send him sworn statements of the facts. He was considering introducing a bill in Congress to provide a means by which such slaves might be recovered by their masters.

The Emancipation Proclamation, which President Lincoln had revealed in September, would not become effective until January 1 and even then it was not to apply in Kentucky. However, Federal troops from northern states were inclined, when stationed in Kentucky, to harbor runaway slaves who fled to their camps. Civil authorities could scarcely compel the military to surrender the fugitives. Brig. Gen. Jeremiah T. Boyle, the Union's military governor of the state, was a Kentuckian and he had issued an order forbidding the practice. Wickliffe thought Boyle's order was being ignored by camp commanders, and he wanted evidence to present to his fellow congressmen.

Wickliffe, a veteran of the War of 1812, was a former governor of Kentucky and a former postmaster general of the United States. Among the Kentuckians in the Confederate States Army who were serving in Tennessee under Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan the big event of the week under review was Morgan's marriage to Miss Mattie Ready of Murfreesboro, whose beauty and charm had made her a favorite in Washington, D. C., society when her father was serving in the U. S. Congress as a Tennessee representative.

The wedding at the Ready home was a brilliant affair. Guests included President Jefferson Davis, Gen. Braxton Bragg, Lt. Gen. W. J. Hardee, Major Gen. John C. Breckinridge and the officers of Bragg's staff and of Morgan's own command. The bride's brother, Col. Horace Ready, a member of Hardee's staff, was one of Morgan's attendants. The officiating minister was Lt. Gen. Leonidas Polk, who in civilian life was Episcopal Bishop of Louisiana. He and Jefferson Davis had been classmates at West Point. After "three lively years" as a cadet, Polk had been converted in his senior year; six months after graduation, he had resigned from the Army to study for the ministry.

Two regimental bands were on hand. One, inside the mansion, provided the wedding music. The other, outside, played for dancing later in the evening. The townspeople of Murfreesboro assembled in front of the house and serenaded the bridal couple and distinguished guests. In response to calls for the President, Jefferson Davis appeared on the veranda and made a graceful little speech. It was a happy interlude in the midst of grim warfare which, before it ended, would claim the lives of the bridegroom, the officiating bishop, and a good many of the guests. One of them, Brig. Gen. Roger W. Hanson of Kentucky, had less than three weeks to live.

Television, Like Newspapers In Danger-When Advertisers Seek To Dictate News Policies

Whether or not one is in agreement or discord with the American Broadcasting Company's method of producing news programs, particularly those dealing with ill-fated politicians, later developments in the Howard K. Smith-Alger Hiss-Richard Nixon case may lay foundation to a dangerous procedure for advertising in the communications media.

At least three major advertisers have expressed disagreement with ABC's presentation of "The Obituary of Richard Nixon," and have acted to break large advertising contracts as an act of protest. The network has refused to comply with these requests for termination with good reason.

A television network's right to present a documentary program as it sees fit seems more important to the processes of communications freedom than does an advertiser's desire that all broadcast scripts dealing with celebrated politicians be shaped in the manner of "This is Your Life." The cause of the network is further enhanced by the fact that not any of the three advertisers seeking to break contracts had any direct connection with the program to which they objected.

Fortunately, newspapers long ago refused to sell editorial privileges to the advertisers. With justifiable feeling that the advertiser gets his full dollar's value in the display spot he is paying for, newspapers refused so steadily to give ground that eventually—except in rare cases—they weren't expected to. Young as it is, television should have already established unshakable standards to protect its obvious right to report news with depth and from different sides.

There is no doubt that had the opinions of Alger Hiss been printed in a roundup of the Nixon case by a newspaper columnist, there would have been no protests and certainly no attempts by advertisers to cancel contracts. The fact that the paper was printed on Veteran's Day or Palm Sunday would have had no relation to its rights to interview and report fully as it deemed reasonable to exploring the case from every angle. The opinions of Alger Hiss were published in a book by him in 1957 with no appreciable protest from the public. Those comments were considerably more lengthy and opinionated than those expressed by Mr. Hiss to Howard K. Smith.

Ironically, the three advertisers in this significant case at ABC may be performing a great and wonderful function in the development of television news coverage. By hitting where it hurts worst, in the revenue department, the advertisers may force television to adopt a strong enough stand in demanding the basic ingredients essential to freedom of speech in the communications media.

Do More Than Half Live

"Does only half of you travel abroad?" was the arresting question on a poster in a Rockefeller Center window not long ago.

It advertised a course for travel-minded Americans at the Berlitz School, reminding them that they had better learn at least one more language if they did not wish to lose 50 percent of the benefits of an overseas trip in which they would invest much time, effort and money.

knew then and we know now, it's a very fine group of which to be a member.

The program was gay and delightful. Zuanita Phelps was program chairman for the evening. She was happy to get Montelle Tripp and Madge Patterson to be on the program. Though not planned, Montelle sang a song in the real Southern tradition and Madge gave a reading in the same vein. We sang songs, played games, and honestly, it was just sheer pleasure.

We prevailed upon the members to give us some news items that we intended for last week's paper, but during Christmas time we do well to get any news in the paper at all. We did learn that Bill and Peggy Hussey will be coming this-a-way from Tulsa to spend the holidays with Peggy's mother Ruth Scott. . . we learned, too, that Ruth Scott is a visitor in Union City nearly every week-end. . . that Marvin and Barbara (Caldwell) Atkins will be coming homeward from Knoxville for Christmas with Elizabeth and Harvey Caldwell, but there's little hope that Don and Ruth (Caldwell) Wright will get here from Norfolk. Don (Lt.-j. g.) is still "sweating out" the Cuban emergency and may have to skip the visit home. . . Bobby Snow and his family won't see much snow for their Christmas, they'll probably have to "sweat out" that Florida sunshine. . . We're looking forward to having the Carlos Lannons running in and out of our house for the holidays. . . the invitation has certainly been extended. . . Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hastings and Lila Hastings were recent visitors in Lexington, Ky. to visit with kith and kin. . . Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Eaves and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Simpson enjoyed a pleasant visit with the Layton Minions in Greenville, Ky. recently.

It is possible that many of our readers will be interested in the Associated Press story with a date-line from New York.

New York, Nov. 26— "Cesare Siepi, 39, Metropolitan Opera bass, obtained a marriage license Monday to marry Louellen Sibley, 28, a dancer.

"Miss Sibley gave a Manhattan address, listing herself as a native of Paducah, Ky.

"Siepi, who took a brief fling on Broadway last spring in the musical "Bravo Giovanni," gave his address as Principessa Clotilde, Milano, Italy.

"It will be a first marriage for each. They gave no indication where and when the wedding will take place.

"Miss Sibley is a daughter of Major and Mrs. J. D. Sibley of Miami, Fla. Her mother, the former Louise Milliken, is a Paducah native and taught in city schools there for several years.

"The parents lived in Gainsville, Ga., before Miss Sibley was born. They returned to Paducah so that Miss Sibley could be born there but left shortly after her birth.

"Still living in Paducah are Miss Sibley's grandmother, Mrs. Frank A. Milliken, 1603 Clark Street, and an uncle, Charles T. Milliken."

The mail brought a nice note from Mary Royster, who wrote from Paducah. Mary dislocated her arm in a recent accident and has been on the mend. She reports she is much better and sends fond Christmas greetings to her many, many friends in Fulton. And that she has many, is for sure.

If there is a more active trade organization in the twin cities that the local chapter of the National Hairdressers Association, we don't know about it. Attending as many meetings as we do, we think that these ladies deserve some kind of platinum halo for the manner in which they share their mutual business policies and even their price schedules. Last week the members of the association met at Dorothy's Beauty Shop for their regular meeting and installed officers. A good time was had by all and the election results indicated that Olene Fields of the Klip and Kurl Beauty Shop will serve as president for next year.

Other officers are: Martha Call, vice-president; Nina McKinney, secretary - treasurer; Georgia Hughes, corresponding secretary and Nell Williams, historian. To get together and discuss the modern trend in beauty parlor operations is a true indication that the gals are on the "permanent wave length."

Olene's new honor reminds us too that her son Mark, was literally raised around a beauty shop. (and his robust health is a thing of beauty, too) celebrated his ninth birthday last Sunday. Olene and Leon really enjoyed a grown-up party for him at the Park Terrace when Mrs. A. B. Thacker and Miss Millie Gray shared the honors at entertaining young Mark. Besides "acting" grown the youngsters played "School" (something they might not enjoy so much when they're older) sang Christmas carols, gave recitations and even had a "twist contest." Nell Covington and Mark Owens twisted the "bestest" and they got a prize.

The traditional birthday refreshments and favors were served the guests. They included:

A HAPPY HOME!

The News congratulates Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips, 200 Oak Street on the arrival of a six month old baby girl, Nena Gail who became a member of their family by adoption on Friday the seventh of December

A Candlelight Vesper Service is planned for December 19 at 5:30 p. m. in the East School gymnasium, South Fulton. The public is cordially invited to the program which will be given by the Music Department under the direction of Miss Myra Williams.

could protest I was dressed warmly, drove my car to the hospital at that miserable hour, and won the battle with the toothache by nine o'clock the next morning. Then I forgot about the dentist and will until the tooth starts acting up again.

It was right funny when the family gathered the next morning and didn't find me there. For a short while they were shocked. Then they all remembered that in their drowsiness they recalled my coming in to tell them I was on my way to the hospital. One thing I can say for myself. "I may get toothaches, but I'm never a bore."

Postpone a visit until everything is "all set" and you will stay at home all your life.

FROM Sam Holly's Scrapbook A THANKSGIVING PRAYER

Thanksgiving, Lord, for all the shining things You bring to me: slow lanterns of the dawn, The marigold sun of noon, dusk's blue, hushed wings, More stars at night than I can stare upon. Thanksgiving for every flower that frost will spare From day to shortening day: chrysanthemums, The season's last heroic rose, the flare Of sumac ripening to the color of plum Thanksgiving for the warmth and sudden gold Of flames that light my hearth; the measured peace Of snowdrifts swirling white and deep and cold Till forests stir with crystal minstrelsy. Thanksgiving, Lord, for every breath I breathe, For bread and wine, the sound of rain-fall, even For love's sweet voice that shall counsel me till death, That every hour lifts up my heart toward heaven.

—DANIEL WHITEHEAD HICKY

THE LOVELY WORLD

The world is such a lovely place, With field and stream and tree, The sky above the grass below, And folks like you, and me. I like to think God, who made - Each lovely thing, and true, Has given them in sacred trust To folks like me, and you. For sometimes, in the silver night When stars shine bright and clear, I seem to hear Him speak to me - And know that He is near. "Oh learn to live!" He whispers low. "Forgive, and gladly share. Then every day, this lovely world Will grow for you more fair!" And so, I know it's up to us - To folks like you, and me, To keep this world the lovely place That God would have it be!

Last Saturday afternoon Johnny Covington, a senior at Fulton High, signed a four year grant-in-aid to the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. Mr. John Mauer, assistant football coach represented U. T.

Covington has played quarterback for the Bulldogs for three years, and during his career he has set a record for the number of passes completed. This six-one, 180 pounder concluded this past season with 27 completed passes, bringing his total for three years to 53. Because of his outstanding performance for the Bulldogs, who suffered only one defeat—a two point loss to Murray, Covington was selected on the all WKC team this fall, and on the All State Third team for Class A schools.

Johnny, an all-around athlete, is also a member of the Fulton High basketball squad, and was one of the starting five on the FHS team that won the First Region Championship last year.

On the scoreboard last Friday night South Fulton came through with two easy victories. The Devillets, after a rather slow first quarter, took command as they downed Tiptonville 46-35. Pat Lowe led the girls by scoring 24 points. The Red Devils outscored the opposing Tiptonville quintet by a 61-35 win. This was the third straight victory for the South Fulton boys. Gary Isbell, Clayburn Peeples, and Gene Hardy each scored 11 points.

Also on Friday night the mighty Fulton City five led at every quarter-end to defeat their close rival Fulton County. After the first few tense moments the Bulldogs outscored the Pilots 77-41. Kenneth Allen poured in 28 points, to lead the scoring for the Bulldogs, while Don Burnette and Johnny Covington each chalked 20 points.

On Saturday night South Fulton split a double-header with Martin. The Devillets won a nip and tuck game 52-51, while the Devils fell to the powerful Martin Panthers 62-56. Bonnie Weeks for the girls and Clayburn Peeples for the boys set the scoring paces with 23 points each.

Next Friday night Fulton City travels to Carlisle County for a First District clash. At the same time the South Fulton Devillets and Red Devils will be playing hosts to Sharon. Then on Saturday night promising to be a cage fan's delight Dresden, after winning 26 games in 61-62 season, will invade the FHS court for the Bulldogs second home game.

On Tuesday night the South Fulton Devillets won over the Greenfield Yellowjackets 41-36. In the boys' game Greenfield took a first-half lead and never surrendered it as they topped the Devils 64-48. Gene Hardy was top scorer for the Devils with 45 points.

DURBIN—

me across me somewhere deep in the jungle working out of my camp with law books and references stacked on the hood, legal papers blowing in all directions, and a long-line of soldiers waiting under a monkey-pod tree for their turn to see me," he recalled.

In addition to his legal assistance duties, Colonel Durbin was so the Claims Officer for Joint Task Force 116, as well as Civil Action Officer.

As Claims Officer, he assumed the role of Foreign Claims Commissioner, in order to settle administratively all foreign national claims which arose from the activities of US military personnel in Thailand. This included determining the amount of and arranging for payment of personal claims for property damages. He even handled the case of a Thai gentleman who had been nipped by an American soldier's dog. "I got to be an expert in judging the value of a 'samlor,'" Colonel Durbin said. "That's the most common vehicle in Thailand... a three-wheeled bicycle with a little covered seat at the back for the passenger. Damages to a second-hand samlor could be settled for about $600 baht ($30.00), but a new one would cost around 900 baht ($45.00).

"Those samlors," he said, "would appear out of nowhere in the middle of the roads at night, usually with no lights on them. Fortunately, most of our claims were minor fender and accessory damage, and they didn't run very high. We never hit a water buffalo, though, and they were all over everywhere day and night. No lights on them of course!"

As Chief of Civic Action and Civil Affairs for Joint Task Force 116, Kentuckian Durbin met frequently with a committee composed of Thai military and government officials, including police, education, engineering, medical, and communications representatives. In this capacity he was responsible for carrying out the US military portion of "Operation Friendship," a cooperative program established by personal correspondence between President Kennedy and King Bhumiphol of Thailand, in order to promote understanding and good will between Americans and Thais.

"There were a lot of things that we were able to do to help the Thais," Durbin said. "We improved and built roads, constructed water reservoirs, built school playgrounds, and furnished medical assistance in many remote jungle areas."

The Thais held classes in the Thai language for Americans, and volunteer personnel from the Thai language for Americans, and volunteer personnel from the Joint Task Force units gave many hours of their free time in teaching English to the Thais, who were always eager to learn.

Colonel Durbin emphasized that "Operation Friendship" was not a one-way program on our part. He remembers most the friendship extended by the Thais to all Americans, the friendly greetings from the children as Americans passed along the roads, and the welcome to their homes that the Thais gave to every soldier in every community.

"I've served all over the world," he said. "But nowhere were the people as friendly as the Thais. Usually the presence of foreign troops in any sovereign area creates some problems, but not in Thailand. There we were accepted as warm and personal friends."

A veteran of over 20 years of service, Colonel Durbin began his military career as an Infantry officer. The foster son of Mrs. W. H. Purcell, of Fulton, Kentucky, he entered service with the 149th Infantry of the Kentucky National Guard's 38th Division. A graduate of Fulton High School, he received his AB degree from the University of Kentucky in 1939, and his MA degree from the same University in 1941. He was admitted to the Kentucky Bar Association that year.

As an Infantryman, he saw combat in Europe in World War

II with the 70th Division, and at war's end, he became a member of the War Crimes Commission in Ludwigsburg, Germany.

Returning to civilian life in 1946 he began his law practice in Fulton. The following year, in an upset election which startled the State because he was unknown at the time, he was elected State Railroad Commissioner. In January 1948 the Army called again, and he returned to active duty with a Regular Army appointment in the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

He saw combat in Korea with the 7th Infantry Division in which he served as the Staff Judge Advocate, a position he later held in both the 1st and 4th Armored Divisions. One of the few paratroopers in the Army's Judge Advocate General's Corps, Colonel Durbin graduated from airborne jump school at Fort Bragg, North Carolina in 1954, and for the next five years he served with the famed 82d and 101st Airborne Divisions. He made so many parachute jumps that he became known affectionately to the troops as "The Jumping Judge."

In 1959 he went to South Vietnam. For the next two years he worked on revising the Code of Military Justice for the Vietnamese Armed Forces. He is still well-known there as the man who instituted, prepared the lecture course, and taught the original courses in American Jurisprudence at the University of Saigon.

Colonel Durbin lives with his family at Fort Shafter, Hawaii. His daughter Paula is a Sophomore at the University of Hawaii, and son Jimmy graduated from the 8th grade at Punahou School last year and is now a freshman in high school.

A troop officer throughout his whole career, Colonel Durbin has the rare distinction of never having served in Washington, DC. He enjoys field duty and admits to a great personal satisfaction in working with and helping the individual soldier. While he agrees that his five-month tour in Thailand was an unusual assignment, he adds with a Kentucky drawl and a twinkle in his eyes: "Unusual assignments are usual for me!"

FLOW OF STATE NEWS from the Kentucky Department of Public Information is now directed by George H. Yater (right), who has been named to head the News Services Division, and Leonard E. Kelsay, who moves up to the position of assistant director, the post formerly held by Yater. Both veteran newsmen, they joined the department last year. Helen G. Henry, who has been news services director for the past two years, has left the post to become editor of Louisville magazine, monthly publication of the Louisville Chamber of Commerce.

McCONNELL NEWS

Mrs. L. T. Caldwell

Mrs. Sam Hastings' dwelling with household contents was destroyed by fire Thursday night. She was visiting her son and his family at the time of the fire and the dwelling was practically demolished before she knew of her tragedy.

Mr. Preston Boggess of Anchorage, Alaska arrived here Saturday to spend the Holidays with his children, Brad and LuAnn Boggess.

We wish to extend our sympathy to the Raymond Gambill family of Fulton in his sudden death. Raymond had many friends in this vicinity and he was loved by all those that knew him. He left a ray of sunshine everywhere he went and will be greatly missed by all that knew him.

Stamps Sold Out Of Big Collection

London—A small part of a great stamp collection went on sale in London Tuesday and soon had the dealers bidding in thousands of pounds.

The stamps came from the collection of the late Maurice Burus, a French philatelist. The London sale, covering only 1-20th of his stamps, is to last four days and will be followed by similar sales in other capitals.

Rebson Lowe, head of a London auctioneering firm, said the total collection is valued at 2 million pounds ($5,600,000). Only Cape of Good Hope stamps were offered Tuesday; they quickly realized $26,990 ($82,572).

The trouble with reformers is that two of them so rarely agree.

What brings new payrolls to Mid-America?

What attracts the scores of new plants that locate along the Main Line of Mid-America?

High on the list of attractions, industrial newcomers tell us, is the forward-reaching look of Illinois Central transportation.

New industries like the quarter billion dollars we have invested in the past ten years to keep our railroad new. They approve our constant probing for better answers to every transport problem. They appreciate our new diesels, our bigger freight cars, our heavier high-speed track, our electronic equipment, our improved train control and yard systems.

Naturally more shippers depend on the Illinois Central and more new industries locate along our lines. It makes good sense to rely on the new Main Line of Mid-America.

Mrs. Jay Harris is in Memorial Hospital in Warren, Michigan recovering nicely after her operation. Her room number is 31.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McAlister left for Kentucky to attend the funeral services of Mrs. McAlister's uncle, Mr. Raymond Gambill. Our sympathy goes out to this family.

The children's Christmas Party will be at church on December 15. About fifty children are expected to be present. The Young Adult class recently started getting larger. Keep up the good work. Remember: Don't send your children to Sunday School and Church—you get up and take them as you are also needed.

Remember the sick and shut-ins. A card or a visit from you is the best cure for anyone on the sick list.

This reporter wishes you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

ITS RELIABILITY COMES FROM ITS QUALITY

A nutshell description of Chevrolet trucks could be "Trucks That Work". It's not exactly earthshaking but it says a mouthful. It's what Chevrolet trucks are best known for—their reliability. Ready to work, day after day, whenever you are.

You can't build trucks that perform like this if you don't put quality into engine, chassis and body. Chevrolet does: double-wall construction, insulated cab, select-wood body floor, chain-supported tailgate, ladder-type frame, the careful attention to upholstery and finish. It's this kind of quality that makes any Chevrolet truck—from pickup to heavyweight tandem—worth more on the average at trade-in!

A quartet composed of Jane Edwards, Brenda McBride, Becky Mitchell and Andy Batts who played a beautiful arrangement of "Fair Lord Jesus" and a trumpet trio of Barry Adams, Mike McClure and John Reed. Their number was an arrangement of the traditional melody "Green Leaves." Each organ selection were beautifully presented by Bob Anderson as he played with exceptional poise and command.

"The Holy City" presented by Mrs. Nelson Tripp and Vyron Mitchell and accompanied by Mrs. Steve Wiley was well received by the audience as were the selections from the "Messiah" and "Sweet Little Jesus Boy", presented by Norman White and accompanied by Mrs. Walter Voelpel. The final numbers were presented by the very fine South Fulton Junior High Chorus, directed by Mrs. Nelson Tripp and accompanied by Mollie Alexander. The chorus sang "A Musical Christmas Carol" and "Sweet Christmas Carols" with Treva Lou Hedge as soloist.

Rev. William Beard read a Christmas Scripture and invocation was given by Rev. William Barnes.

Christmas spirit permeated the lovely auditorium of the church and the acceptance of the program could be summed up in the losing remarks made by Mrs. Iendon Wright, chairman of the music department when she said: "I hope your Christmas will be as bright as the star that shown over Bethlehem hundreds of years ago."

The bridegroom-elect is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wade and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Watts of Fulton. He is a graduate of South Fulton High School, and attended Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn., and was an Honor graduate of United Electronics.

On December 25 to answer the petition. The Kentucky Utilities petition asks that the election in which residents of Hickman voted 376 to 71 to acquire KU property be set aside. The plaintiffs alleged that the copy of the ballot or face of the voting machine was not published according to law.

Another allegation was that an ordinance required for authorization of the election was not properly done. Also the plaintiffs said that the question as submitted on the face of the voting machine was designed to improperly influence the voters. Other claims were that people outside the City of Hickman voted in the city precincts, to which the election was confined and that consolidation of voting precincts was not done in compliance with the law.
